Oceanair has been very much in the public eye of the air-conditioning world recently following our venture with Calor Gas, appointment of new directors and now with SANYO's CO2 water heater. We are able to offer our customers unique products, specialist training and excellent service.

Bristol is first site in UK for installation of CO2 based Heat Pump System

The UK's first installation of SANYO's ground-breaking new ECO carbon dioxide-based heat pump heating system is now up and running at Oceanair's Bristol facility.

The new refrigerant-based technology harnesses an advanced air-to-water heat pump to deliver low-cost hot water for use in heating and domestic hot water in residential and small commercial premises.

Three new directors take Oceanair forward

Following Bob Cowlard's return to SANYO, Oceanair is now under the leadership of the experienced and enthusiastic senior team; a team set to move Oceanair forward to its next stage of growth.

All three directors have been with the company a long time and bring to the table three very different skill sets and areas of expertise which complement each other and give our customers an all round service.
